THE HIGH COST OF LIVING.

Leading Massachusetts Business Men Give Their Opinions.

BOSTON, April 2.—Various reasons for the high cost of living have been obtained by the Massachusetts special commission, and five leading business men offered their opinions today.

The high price of milk, according to President William A. Graustein of the Boston Dairy Company, is due to doctors, magazine writers and scientists.

Charles H. Jones, president of a large shoe and leather company, believes the alleged shoe machine trust stifles competition and raises prices.

Edward Hamlin, president of a local coal company, told the commission that small coal purchases had raised the price of fuel 51 per cent.

George E. Keith, a Brockton shoe manufacturer, claims that organized labor, will not permit a shoe worker to do his full "stunt."

C. F. F. Thomas, connected with a sugar refinery, is of the opinion that the sugar "trust" has lowered the price of sugar.

The commission is obtaining a vast array of statistics, and expects to report to the legislature May 1.

THOUSANDS CHEER AND WAVE FLAGS.

Roosevelt at Naples, Glad to Be Homeward Bound.

Accepts Invitation for Dinner and Reception in Rome.

NAPLES, April 2.—The blue bay of Naples, bathed in glorious sunshine, never was more beautiful than when steamer Prinz Heinrich, with the Roosevelt family on board, steamed into the harbor at 8:20 o'clock this morning. Notwithstanding the early hour, the waterfront was lined with thousands who wished to share in the welcome to Mr. Roosevelt on his return from Africa. Only Ambassador Leishman, with the other members of the embassy, American Consul Crowningshield, Marquis de Sata, the Prefect of Naples, official representative of the municipality, the commander of the fort, and a group of foreign correspondents were admitted to the ship when the vessel docked, but outside the gates a surging mass of excited persons, including hundreds of Americans, craned their necks to secure an early glimpse of the distinguished American.

As soon as the gangplank had been lowered the official party of welcome boarded the vessel and was conducted aloft on the bridge where the Roosevelts were bidding good-by to the captain. Cordial greetings were exchanged. Mr. Roosevelt, attired in a grey sack suit, and wearing a soft black hat, appeared in splendid health and spirits. His weather-beaten face gave him the appearance of a trained athlete. He spoke with youthful pleasure of setting his foot again on European soil and of feeling that at last he was homeward bound. Mr. Roosevelt said the voyage from Alexandria had been splendid, and in perfect weather.

A few moments later he descended the gangplank and the crowd catching sight of his unmistakable figure, greeted him with cheers. Many Americans had flags, which they waved frantically. The Roosevelts, with those who had come to formally receive them, were soon whisked away in automobiles to the Excelsior Hotel. As the motor cars made their way through the crowd, Mr. Roosevelt raised his hat and, smiling, bowed right and left in acknowledgment of repeated cheers.

Reaching his hotel, the former President was besieged by newspaper men. Promptly and firmly he reiterated his refusal to discuss any phase of American politics or other affairs, adding that he would stick to his announced policy throughout his European tour. Any statements purporting to have come from him would be unauthorized, he said. At his hotel Mr. Roosevelt found awaiting him a messenger from Mayor Nathan of Rome, bearing an invitation from the municipal authorities, who wished to give a dinner and reception in his honor at the historic capital. The former President promptly accepted the invitation and fixed the date for Wednesday evening next. Following this reception, he will leave for Spezia. Otherwise there will be no change in the program arranged for his visit in Rome.

The expected arrival of Mr. Roosevelt had created considerable excitement among Neapolitans, who, since his brief sojourn here in April of last year, had promised to give him a hearty welcome on his return to the Queen of the Mediterranean. The Prinz Heinrich arrived earlier than her usual hour, but the crowds had discounted this possibility and were not taken by surprise. When the steamer was sighted this morning the docks of San Vincenzo and the Immacolatella, the arsenal and the Promenade Chiaia along the Via Caracciolo were already crowded. On many houses throughout Naples the colors of the country waved alongside the Stars and Stripes. A large number of boats flying the American flags and carrying the citizens of both centres went out to meet the steamer.

The morning was matchless, and Mr. Roosevelt had a splendid view of the enchanting bay as the vessel drew in between the promontory of Posilip and the Sorrento peninsula. In the near distance were the blue Capri, Ischia and Procida, while Vesuvius, the threatening and majestic, towered over all.

As the steamer approached, the crowds on shore shouted "Long live Roosevelt!" The excitement grew when Mr. Roosevelt could be distinguished on deck. From all sides came salutes and cheers, while hats and handkerchiefs and flags were waved. It must have seemed like a home-coming to Mr. Roosevelt for the American colors could be seen from the Bay of Santa Lucia to the heights of the Vomero. The formal reception was carried out as planned, Mr. Roosevelt receiving first his countrymen, then representatives of the municipality of Naples, after which he acknowledged the popular welcome. The landing and drive to the Excelsior Hotel, where apartments for the family had been reserved by Mrs. Roosevelt during her earlier visit to Naples, were accomplished without any untoward happening.

Thousands of Americans who had been traveling in southern Italy had swarmed into the city and they were augmented by hundreds of tourists from the big excursion steamships Cincinnati and Grosser Kurfurst, which swung at anchor in the Bay of Naples to give their passengers a chance to be the first of his countrymen to welcome Colonel Roosevelt in Europe.

Extensive police precautions have been taken to the end that Colonel Roosevelt and his family may not be incommoded by his enthusiastic well-wishers or others. These are in line with those taken during Colonel Roosevelt's journey to Africa and will last until he leaves Naples.

No fixed program had been made for Mr. Roosevelt's stay here. It is probable that he will hold an informal reception at the Excelsior Hotel, and that he will visit the studio of the sculptor Chiaromonte to inspect a bust of the late Marion Crawford, the novelist, which Mrs. Crawford intends to present to him.

Love Springs New Sensation In Ballinger Inquiry.

WASHINGTON, April 2.—The spotlight now in the committee yesterday served to increase the demand for seating room at the Ballinger-Pinchot hearing this morning, and the largest crowds since the days of the Glavis, Pinchot and Garfield testimony was on hand when the doors were opened. H. K. Love, now a United States marshal in Alaska, but formerly a special agent of the land office, was on the stand under cross-examination by Attorney Brandeis, representing Louis R. Glavis and others, when the hearing adjourned yesterday. Mr. Love is an ex-Rough Rider, and when asked yesterday to what he owed his appointment as marshal he mentioned the fact that he "happened" to be a trooper in Colonel Roosevelt's regiment. Senator Flint remarked that he need go no further. Love denied that his investigation of the Cunningham claims had been "warped" in any way by the fact that he was a candidate for the marshalship. It was Love who made the favorable reports on the claims on which Mr. Ballinger based his clear listing order.

A new sensation was sprung soon after the inquiry was resumed today. Attorney Brandeis at once launched into the cross-examination of Mr. Love, who told of meeting John W. Dudley, former registrar of the land office at Juneau, Alaska, last February in a Juneau hotel. Dudley, testified Mr. Love, said he had been "let out" of his office and that Collier's Weekly had intimated to him that "it would be worth from $5,000 to $10,000" for him to go to Washington to testify.

"Do you mean that the Weekly meant to bribe him?" asked Mr. Madison of the committee.

"No, not to bribe him, but to pay him," replied the witness.

"You draw a whole lot finer distinctions than I have been able to do," retorted Mr. Madison.

The committee pressed Mr. Love for details of the meeting. The witness said he saw Mr. Dudley for not more than three minutes. He said Mr. Dudley wished him to tell Mr. Ballinger of this offer and that he had not accepted it but that he desired to testify for the "other side." Mr. Love said he did not tell Mr. Ballinger, because he thought perhaps Mr. Dudley had put the wrong construction on the remark of the Weekly's agent. He said Mr. Dudley did not tell him the name of the agent.

"Do you think the Weekly wanted Dudley to come here to tell the truth?" asked Mr. Graham (Dem).

"Most assuredly," replied the witness. 6

Mr. Love said Dudley had expressed the intention of going to Washington to clear his record with the department since he had been dismissed. The committee decided by unanimous vote to subpoena Mr. Dudley, who, the witness said, was engaged in business in Juneau. Mr. Love denied that Dudley had intended to go to Washington before Mr. Ballinger by having him mention the incident to Secretary of the Interior.

Attorney Vetrees offered in evidence, on re-direct examination of Mr. Love, a letter written by Secretary Loeb to Captain E. C. Hunter of Oklahoma dated February 3, 1908, stating that the Secretary of the Interior (Mr. Garfield) had informed the President that Love had been cleared of the charges against him, and that his appointment as marshal in Alaska had been ordered.

VESSEL A MASS OF ICE.

Tahoma's Crew Had Thrilling Time in Search for Survivors.

WASHINGTON, April 2.—A thrilling time was experienced by the crew of revenue cutter Tahoma, which, at the direction of the Treasury Department, went on a search for the boat's crew of steamship Farallon, which left that vessel after she was wrecked in Illamna bay, Alaska. The crew started for Kodiak, 120 miles away, to obtain assistance from steamer Portland.

Captain J. H. Quinan of the Tahoma has sent a long report of his trip to the Treasury Department. The movements of the cutter were severely hampered by bad weather, and the captain and various members of the crew had their fingers and ears badly frostbitten. The vessel at one time was a mass of ice, and all the ironwork inside, where exposed, was covered with frost quarter to half an inch thick, while some of the radiators burst.

The Farrallon party, although having suffered terrible hardships after leaving the wreck of their vessel, appeared to be in fine physical condition when found, and none the worse for their experience. At Cape Douglass, where their boat and nearly all their provisions were lost, the men were obliged to wade to the arm-pits to reach solid ice, and at night they lay on blocks of ice, wrapped in blankets. Finally, after a long delay, five of them managed to reach Afognak, where they were kindly received and made comfortable. A sixth man preferred to remain at a place where the party stopped.

FIRST ATTACK ON STOCK GAMBLING.

Scope Covers Country from Atlantic to Pacific.

Many Big Brokers' Offices Raided Simultaneously.

WASHINGTON, April 2.—Armed with bench warrants issued by the supreme court of the District of Columbia, special agents of the Department of Justice this morning simultaneously raided brokers' offices in New York, Philadelphia Jersey City, Baltimore, Cincinnati, St. Louis. Conspiracy indictments in which 29 persons are named, five of them said to be millionaires, and all interested in brokers' offices in large cities of the United States, were returned late yesterday by the federal grand jury of the District of Columbia, on evidence which agents of the Department of Justice had been gathering for more than a year. The indictments were withheld yesterday on the request of Attorney General Wickersham, so that Department of Justice detectives might make the raids simultaneously on the places suspected of being bucket shops. The men indicted are said to be those financially interested in the corporations known as E. S. Bogge & Co., which has offices in New York and Philadelphia; Price & Co. which has offices in Baltimore and New York, and the Standard Stock & Grain Dealers, which has offices in Jersey City, Philadelphia, Cincinnati and St. Louis.

As being interested in Bogge & Co. the following are indicted: Richard E. Preusser, Lee Mayer, George Turner, William H. Lillis, Oliver J. Robinson, Edward S. Beggs, Harry Owens, Robert A. Guy, all of New York, and Alford and Marshall C. F. Parrish, of Philadelphia. Named in connection with them as alleged conspirators are Edward Everett Taylor of Washington, D. C. and his telegraph operator, Harry Johnson.

In the indictments against Price & Co. the following are named: William B. Price, Virgil P. Randolph, Harry M. Randolph, Charles T. Merewead, Edward Weldon, Joseph Gaskins and James A. Anderson, all of Baltimore; Thomas Campbell and Edward B. Taylor of Philadelphia.

In the Standard Stock & Grain Dealers are named: Edward Altemus, Samuel Raymond, Oscar J. Rupp, and Robert Hall of Jersey City, N. J.; Louis Cellar of St. Louis, Henry C. Stumpf of Philadelphia, and Henry R. Durrye and his telegraph operator, Charles R. Alley.

This, the United States government's first attack on stock gambling, has been thoroughly prepared with the greatest secrecy. Its scope practically covers the United States from the Missouri river to the Atlantic. The three concerns indicted maintain more than 250 offices and branch offices, located from New England to Oklahoma.

With the aid of United States Attorney General Baker of the District of Columbia, Special Assistant Attorney General A. Bruce Bielaski and Chief Finch of Attorney General Wickersham's bureau of investigation, have been presenting the evidence to the grand jury for several days. The theory of the conspiracy indictments is that every man who was connected in any way with the operation of the three firms which did business in the District had entered into a conspiracy to relieve people of their money. The government maintains that every alleged bucketing transaction of the local brokers named was the act of each and every person charged in the indictment.

Attorney General Wickersham did not comment on the raids today further than to issue a prepared statement, of which the following is the substance: In the first indictment against Preusser, Mayer, Turner, etc., etc., the defendants are charged with conspiracy to commit an offense against the United States in violation of section 5440 of the Revised Statutes which makes unlawful the keeping of bucket shops in the District of Columbia. Edward E. Taylor, mentioned in the indictment, maintained two offices in Washington, and was correspondent for Bogge & Co. of 47 Broadway, New York.

"This firm," the Attorney General's statement says, "as well as those involved in the other two indictments, alleges that it buys and sells securities through the Consolidated Exchange of Philadelphia, and that Ford and Parrish are their representatives on that exchange. The evidence before the grand jury tended to show that this exchange was merely a cover maintained to enable operators of bucket shops to conceal the real nature of their operations.

"Preusser is reported to be a notorious gambler, who was convicted of the murder of one Myles McDonald some years ago, as a result of which he was confined for a year in an institution for insane convicts.

"Mayer is a well known bookmaker, and Turner is said to have been expelled from the New York Stock Exchange and with Lillis has been connected with some of the most notorious bucket shop concerns in the country. A number of the men named in this indictment are well known as bucket shop operators.

"This indictment has two counts, one count covering each of the offices maintained by Taylor in Washington.

"In the second indictment, against Altemus Cella, Raymond et al., Durye maintained an office in Washington, with Alley as his operator. Altemus, the Cella brothers and Raymond, with Rupp, are associated with the Standard Stock & Grain Dealers, No. 75 Montgomery street, Jersey City, which also purported to do business through the Consolidated Exchange of Philadelphia. Hallis is the manager or chief clerk at Jersey City, and Stumpf is the representative on the Philadelphia Consolidated Exchange. Altemus was recently convicted in Jersey City in connection with operations there, and the two Cella brothers are well known as bucket shop operators.

"In the third indictment, against Price, Randolph, Macdonald, Weldon et al., Price, the two Randolphs, Macdonald Weldon, Anderson and Gaskins are connected with William B. Price & Co., of Baltimore, of which Taylor was correspondent in Washington prior to becoming correspondent for Bogge & Co. the first part of September, 1909. Price & Co. also purport to do business through the Consolidated Exchange of Philadel-

BUSINESS SHOWS PROGRESS.

Further Curtailment of Production by Cotton Mills Unfavorable Feature.

NEW YORK, April 1.—Despatches to R. G. Dun & Co. indicate that business, as a whole, reflects steady progress although further curtailment of production by the cotton mills is an unfavorable feature. Weather conditions at Boston favor the distribution of seasonable merchandise and dry goods trade gradually improves, although buying is still conservative. Cotton goods at first hands are unsettled and manufacturers continue to reduce operation while reports from the woolen industry are not encouraging.

Bank clearings this week at all leading cities of the United States amount to $2,566,419,772, an increase of 1.36 compared with last year.

NEW HYDROPHOBIA TREATMENT

University of Michigan Physician Announces a Discovery.

ANN ARBOR, Mich., April 1.—Dr. James Cumming, director of the Pasteur Institute of the University of Michigan, announces the discovery of a new method for the treatment of hydrophobia. The new treatment, Dr. Cumming says, shortens the time of treatment by one week. Dr. Cumming uses a virus prepared from spinal tissues from a rabid animal. This is injected into the patient. The virus is said to have been used in several cases recently with marked success.

JUDGE CLEARED.

Explanation of Connection With Insurance Cases Accepted.

NEW YORK, April 1.—Justice Edward B. McCall of the state supreme court explained today his financial transactions with William H. Buckley, legislative agent for the fire insurance companies, and after the day's hearing was over Justice McCall met Superintendent Hotchkiss, of the state insurance department and gave to him a statement which satisfied Mr. Hotchkiss that personal friendship accounted sufficiently for the questionable aspect which certain incidents first seemed to wear.

Earlier in the investigation evidence was found in the books of the Phenix Fire Insurance Company of Brooklyn which induced Mr. Hotchkiss to say it looked as if Justice McCall had been party to an attempt to deceive the insurance department. After reading the justice's explanation tonight, Mr. Hotchkiss said he was satisfied that the puzzled books of the Phenix had placed Justice McCall in a false light.

MIDDLETOWN.

A Large Number of Members Attend Meeting of Oliphant Reading Club at Miss Etta Sherman's.

[Regular correspondence of the News.]

There was a good attendance Friday at the meeting of the Oliphant Reading Club, which was entertained by Miss Etta M. Sherman at her home on the East Main road. The afternoon's topic, "The Johns of the Seventeenth Century," formed an instructive subject and was preceded by quotations from Dryden, one of the "Johns" and a noted poet and writer of his day.

A brief outline was given of John Harvard, 1638, who came from England to America about the middle of the century and at his death bequeathed 300 volumes and half his estate to found the College which bears his name at Cambridge. In 1828 the alumni erected Memorial Hall in his honor. Mrs. Susanna Main, one of the club members who is visiting in Cambridge, sent a letter and two souvenir cards to be presented before the club—the statue of John Harvard which is situated on the campus, and a view of Memorial Hall.

John Locke 1632-1704, a great English philosopher was chiefly interested in medicine and the physical sciences. His most famous works were "Some Thoughts Concerning Education" and his celebrated "Essay on the Human Understanding" the latter occupying his time and thoughts for 18 years. He believed in "beginning the education of the future man even from his cradle."

John Dryden, 1631-1700, was considered the greatest of English poets of second rank. Besides many noted poems, he wrote many plays for the theatre, and spent much time in translations. One of his most noted writings was his ode, "Alexander's Feast," which was composed at the age of 66. His style was distinguished by its power, sweep and vigor. Several selections were read from his most noted works. He was buried in Poets' Corner, Westminster Abbey in 1700.

John Milton, 1608-1674, was the greatest of all epic poets. Destined for the church, he was diverted by his strong poetical tendencies. He was also a teacher, and a writer of notable works of prose. In his fifty-third year he wrote his epic poem, "Paradise Lost" and later its companion, "Paradise Regained." His style is the noblest in the English language. His drama, "Samson Agonistes," is the story of the last years of the poet's life, which were spent in blindness. Extracts were read from "Paradise Lost."

John Bunyan, 1628-1688, was one of the most popular of English prose writers. Of poor parentage, he later became a devoted Christian and was considered a clergyman of exceptional powers. He was apprehended for preaching, being disobedient to the conventional act, and remained twelve and a half years in jail. During this time he wrote his immortal "Pilgrim's Progress," the most wonderful allegory of a Christian soul's efforts after holiness ever written. After his release from jail he spent the remaining 16 years of his life in preaching. Selections from "The Golden City" in Pilgrim's Progress were read.

Among the books used during the afternoon were the Oxford Treasury of English Literature, Famous Leaders among Men and a History of English Language and Literature. The Johns of the seventeenth century were all of English birth.

Rev. James T. Conover of St. Paul's School, Concord, N. H., who has been in town for a few days to visit his country place on Indian avenue, returned to Concord today.

Mrs. George Sturtevant of New Bedford is guest of her mother, Mrs. Nathaniel L. Champlin, on Forest avenue, and will remain until after the funeral of her step-father.

The E. J. Club has concluded its semi-monthly socials for the season. The last dance was given Friday evening at Oakland Hall, with a large attendance. Mr. Irving A. Corey, violin, has been assisting Mr. Winnifred Carter, piano, during the past month, in place of Mr. Augustus Allen, who was one of the musicians of the earlier winter. Light refreshments were served.

A number of relatives left this morning for Providence, to attend the funeral of Joseph A. Peckham, among them Mr. Peckham's nephew and namesake of Middletown. Mr. Peckham, who was in his eighty-fifth year, was a younger brother of Mr. Elisha Clarke Peckham of this town and one of a family of 14 children. He had often been a visitor here.

Entertainment and Supper at Christian Church a Success.

D. A. R's. Guests of Mrs. J. A. Barker—St. Mary's Guild and St. Paul's Hold Meetings.

[Regular correspondence of the News.]

The entertainment and quahaug chowder supper given by the young people of the Christian Church, assisted by the older ones, was an unqualified success. The attendance was larger than had been seen on a similar occasion for perhaps 20 years, a large number being present from Newport and other towns. The vestry had been decorated in green and white, and with numerous Chinese lanterns, the tables were attractive with pretty china, glass and silver, and especially noticeable was the brilliant lighting. The quahaug chowder was one of Mr. Thomas J. Sweet's best. Added to this were coffee, rolls, pickles, pie and cake, and an abundance of waiters who gave quick and attentive service.

The north side of the vestry had been curtained off and a large raised platform erected and furnished, the library opening from it making a desirable waiting room. The entertainment was under the supervision of Mrs. Edward W. Thurston, Miss Etta M. Sherman and Miss Lizzie Chase and reflected much credit upon their efforts and those of the actors. Mr. Robert Purcell announced the program as follows: Recitation, Sophie Hague; solo, Charles Anthony, accompanist, Miss Sadie C. Anthony; pictures from the poets, illustrated in costume, Miss Etta Sherman reading the lines personified—"The Barefoot Boy," Albert Purcell; "Maud Muller," Ruth Anthony; "Barbara Freitchie," Mary Anthony; "The Maid," Esther Bishop; "Song of the Shirt," Bella Tallman; "The Milkmaid," Sophia Hague; "John Anderson, My Joe," Lizzie Chase and a stranger; solo by Miss Carolyn D. Anthony, "My First Love," Lohr, and as an encore "You'd Better Ask Me"; reading, "Family Financeering," Miss Etta M. Sherman; solo, Edward Suddington, "Tis the Last Rose of Summer," with encore, Mrs. Belle Tallman, pianist.

An introduction to the Ruggles family was given by Mrs. Edward W. Thurston and was highly humorous, the whole of the large family appearing in couples appropriately costumed. First were "Grandpa and Grandma Ruggles," Mr. and Mrs. George G. Brown; then, "Pa and Ma Ruggles," Mr. F. Percival Sherman and Miss Annie Hathaway; "Mehitable," Mrs. Robert Purcell; "Obadiah," Irving Anthony; "Beatrice," Helen Walker; "Alonzo," William Barclay; "Twins," Alice Conway and Harold Sherman; "Baby," Esther Bishop; "Cook," Eva Walker. Two determined recalls were responded to.

Then came a solo, Charles Anthony; recitation, Sophie Hague; solo, Miss Anthony, "Spring Again", Wright, and to a recall "Just A'Wearin' For You," Carrie Jacobs Bond; reading, "Stand on Your Feet," Esther Bishop. The illustrated song, "Jesus, Saviour, Pilot Me," was the gem of a program replete with good things. The first scene was a full-sized boat with sail set, in which Mary Paquin, representing childhood, was standing. It glided slowly across the long platform, while a chorus out of sight sang the lines interspersed with reading by Mrs. Thurston. In the second scene, representing the second verse, youth stood in the boat, Miss Ruth Anthony, and in the third scene, Mary Barclay, in costume, filled the part of old age to perfection.

St. Mary's Guild held its annual meeting at the home of Dr. and Mrs. Francis P. Conway and elected the following officers: Director, Herbert Chase; president and treasurer, Mrs. William R. Hunter; vice president, Mrs. Herbert Chase; secretary, Mrs. William G. Albro; purchasing committee, Mrs. F. P. Conway, Mrs. John E. Manchester, Mrs. N. H. Peckham; committee on membership, Mrs. Restcom P. Manchester, Mrs. George A. Brown, Mrs. W. R. Hunter. During Mrs. Hunter's absence abroad Mrs. G. A. Brown will act as treasurer. There was a large attendance, supper being served to 30, consisting of cold meats, rolls, coffee and cake. The business meeting was held in the evening, that the men members might be present. Five new names were presented to be voted on at the next business meeting.

In response to the invitation of Mrs. J. Alton Barker, regent of William Ellery Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, about 35, including members and a few guests, gathered at her house on Union street Friday for an all-day thimble party. All who wished found a conveyance waiting for them, but the day was so fine and the walking so good that by far the larger number chose to walk the short distance to the house. They found an abundance of dainty sewing prepared for them, to make ready for a sale within a few weeks. At 1 o'clock a quahaug chowder and coffee were served, followed by cake and sherbet. A merry time was had during the collation.

At its conclusion all gathered in the reception hall to spring a surprise upon the regent, a sort of pleasing joke for the first day of April. The regent had been kept in darkness as to what it was all about and the different expressions of her face were quite amusing while Mrs. Clara E. Dennis made a presentation speech, and then in the name of William Ellery Chapter gave her a beautiful flag, 12 by 15 feet, and the company sang the chorus of "The Star Spangled Banner," Mrs. Farnum pianist, and Mrs. Philip Wilbour and Mrs. Walcott directors of the singing. Mrs. Barker responded briefly. At 4:30 tea and cake were served, the last of the guests departing in time to take the 6 o'clock car for Newport.

The annual meeting for the election of officers of the Ladies' Association of St. Paul's Church was held Thursday afternoon, with results as follows: President, Miss Hattie G. Anthony; treasurer, Miss Fanny Hicks; secretary, Abbie Anthony; collector, Mrs. Franklin Porter; work committee, Wilbur C. Wheeler, Mrs. B. C. Sherman, Mrs. Charles L. Freeborn, Mrs. Joseph W. Greene; fancy work, Mrs. C. C. Chase, Mrs. Oliver G. Hicks, Mrs. J. M. Eldredge, Mrs. J. Sturgis Pearce. The supper committee—Mrs. Wilbur C. Wheeler, Mrs. B. C. Sherman and Miss Harriet Frances Sanford—served a salad supper to 35.

Mr. and Mrs. Frederick A. Lawton have moved from Sprague street to Park Avenue, in the upper tenement of the house in which the lower is occupied by Mr. Ralph Freeborn.

A carpenters' union was formed a few nights ago in Portsmouth, the meeting being held in Eureka hall, quite a large number of men coming from Fall River to assist in forming the organization. Foreman Brown of the Rhode Island Coal Company being the chief promoter.

The meeting of the Ladies' Benevolent Society of the Methodist Episcopal Church, was well attended and supper was served.

The "Ex-Bachelor Club", nine in number, gave a dance at the town hall Thursday evening. The hall was well filled with dancers, the Lyric orchestra of Fall River furnishing the music.

The second of the children's suppers under the direction of the Junior Auxiliary of St. Paul's Church, Friday evening in the guild house, was well attended.

Mr. Ernest Bishop, who has been at Dr. Conway's during the winter, has now gone to the home of his brother, Mr. Richmond A. Bishop.

Mr. Andrew, assistant superintendent at the Old Colony car barn, has been entertaining during Easter week his nephew and niece, Raymond and Marion Rowell of Fall River, and the last of the week his sister Mrs. Frank E. Rowell.

One of the landmarks of Acushnet, Mass., was destroyed by fire this week, the building on the north third of the old Hathaway farm of 600 acres, erected in 1735. It descended to Mrs. Ruggles of Portsmouth from her father, George H. Lewis, who purchased it in 1817. Some of Mrs. Ruggles's furniture was stored in the attic and was lost, as was the greater part of the tenant's furniture.

Half the Cattle of the State Said to Have Tuberculosis.

Automobile Traps Established in Warwick---Forest Fires Brought Under Control.

"I think that if you would use the tuberculin test on all the cattle in the state fully 50 per cent of them would have to be condemned," said State Veterinarian John S. Pollard before the house judiciary committee Friday. Dr. Pollard was talking on the measure providing that all cattle shipped into the state be submitted to the tuberculin test for the purpose of ascertaining whether they are tuberculous. The act provides for a restoration of a system of cattle inspection which formerly existed in this state, but which was repealed some years ago. "You think, then, that if the Board of Agriculture had money enough to pay for the cattle condemned it might be found necessary to kill all the cattle in the state?" asked Representative H. F. Woodmansee of Dr. Pollard. "Well, hardly," replied Dr. Pollard, "but it would be a good thing for the state if the diseased ones were killed." Dr. Pollard was made the target of scores of questions as to the value of the physical test as compared with the tuberculin test. He admitted that if a tuberculin injection was given to cattle within one week prior to an official test, it would be impossible for the official making the test to detect the presence of tuberculosis.

Aroused by repeated violations of the automobile speed laws, the town of Warwick has instituted "traps" on the main thoroughfares through the town leading to Narragansett Pier, where reckless driving has been found frequent. The roads under police espionage are Elmwood avenue and the Apponaug road, and preparations have been made for prosecution of automobile cases. Town Solicitor Curtis will endeavor to secure jail sentences instead of fines. Councilman Adelbert E. Place, who has had the matter of stopping motor speeding in charge, declares his determination to stop the flagrant violation of the law and the absolute disregard of public safety. "Traps" have been established in several sections and the police believe that many motorists will be landed. The identity of the "auto cops" is being kept a secret, for the reason that it is believed that this will be of material advantage in the effective performance of their duties. The policemen are men of past experience in this particular line of work, however. Later it may be necessary to double the force of men looking for speed violations. The council's action is the result of a petition, a few weeks ago, asking relief from the danger to which the residents of Hillsgrove and Norwood were being exposed.

The fires which for the past three or four days have raged in the woods in the western part of the state, in the towns of Coventry and West Greenwich, have been brought under control after burning over an area of approximately five square miles and destroying four dwelling houses, two barns, outbuildings and lumber, cut and standing, at a monetary loss of approximately $25,000. The fire started Monday morning in the cranberry bog about one and a half miles from Greene station, between the railroad and what is known as "Narrow Lane," the road leading from Greene to Hope Valley. This fire burned all day Monday and Monday night and broke out afresh Tuesday morning. The wind in the meantime shifted to the northeast, blowing the flames into the dense growth of young timber southwest of the cranberry bog, and it swept on nearly to the Connecticut line, reaching Escoheag before it was finally checked. At "Liberty Factory" the Cummings cottage, a house and barn on the McNaughton place, the house on the John Parker, Jr., place, barns and outbuildings, were destroyed, and it was with extreme difficulty that the farmhouses and buildings in the path of the flames near Sharp street in West Greenwich were saved. The territory burned over was woodland mostly, a young growth and not as valuable timber as in some other parts of the town. Charles E. Capwell, one of the forest wardens of the town of Coventry, assisted by Deputy Sheriff Whitman and a corps of volunteers from Greene and Summit, fought the flames in the Coventry end of the town successfully. The recently appointed forest warden for West Greenwich, George Fish, either had not qualified or was without apparatus, as, according to the men who fought the flames in the West Greenwich part, he did not put in an appearance.

The open season for oysters began yesterday and from now until the law again goes on the free fishermen of the state will reap a harvest more or less plentiful, according to the abundance of the crop and the localities prospected. April 1 has been eagerly awaited by the free fishermen of the state for many years and on the morning of the day the public beds have been the mecca for hundreds of tongsmen. In times past the Seekonk river, the flats on the east side of the harbor and other spots near Providence have been the favorite fishing grounds noted for the abundance of the shellfish. The bivalves were generally found in large quantities, mostly in the shape of seed oysters, and when sold to dealers brought all the way from 20 to 45 cents a bushel. There was a great rivalry among the followers of the shore as to who would the first on the beds on the morning of April 1, and at sunrise the water over the free beds would be fairly alive with boats. As many as 150 skiffs have been counted in former years between the Washington and Red bridges, Friday morning, for the first time in years, there was not a boat between the bridges at sunrise, and it was 9 o'clock before the first and only boat of the morning put in an appearance. At that hour a lone fisherman sculled his skiff up to what is left of Tockwake Island, dropped his anchor and began to tong. On the formerly crowded waters between Kettle Point and Wilkesbarre pier but three boats were to be seen and on the ground below Starvegoat Island there were the same number. Providence dealers declare the fishermen are down in Greenwich bay, where the seed is much larger and where they can scoop up the oysters at a rate which cannot be approached on the badly depleted free beds around Providence harbor. As there are many bushels in the upper waters of the bay, however, they say the fishermen will be going that way as soon as the rich deposits farther down are gathered in.

Michael Fleming, a veteran of the Third regiment, Rhode Island cavalry, long since though dead by his relatives, returned to his people in Providence recently, after an absence of 41 years. During his absence in search of gold and fame he has not once corresponded with the "folks at home," and he had something of a task in making his identity known. He has spent most of the time since leaving the city in the West, and though he did not come back with the fortune which he went after, he has stored up a veritable treasure of memories and adventure. He said that a longing for Providence at last secured the better of him and he just had to come home. He left in 1862, a young man of 24. He was brim full of life and enthusiasm when he departed, and although he carries his years well now, he admits that he is not as lively as he used to be. He has, however, not only retained his enthusiasm, but added to it. Providence, he declares, will not keep him long, for he has grown to feel a love for the hearty, cordial Westerners and for their big broad country.

Albert A. Williams, formerly a member of the Johnston town council and of the house of representatives, died at his home in Pocasset Friday night. For a year past, Mr. Williams, who was in his seventy-sixth year, had been in failing health. During the past two weeks he was unconscious all the time. Death was due to hardening of the arteries. He was a son of Lemuel Williams, a lineal descendant of Roger Williams, and was born in Seekonk; was educated in the public schools and completed his education at the Lapham Institute at Scituate. During his early manhood Mr. Williams was associated with his father-in-law, Olney Hendrick, in cotton manufacturing. Their mill was in Simmonsville, and was known as the "Bag" mill. It was on the site of the present Victoria mill. About 50 years ago Mr. Williams took up his residence in the farm house where he died. He became prominent in town affairs, and served 14 consecutive terms in the town council before the annexation of a part of the town by Providence. He also served in the lower branch of the General Assembly before the partition of the town. In his younger days Mr. Williams was a prominent member of Mannfacturers Lodge of Odd Fellows. He was also a long-time member of the Plainfield Street Free Baptist Church.

President Richard C. MacLaurin of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology was the guest of honor and speaker of the evening at a meeting and dinner of the Technology Club of Rhode Island held at the University Club in Providence Friday evening. I. W. Litchfield, who has charge of the publicity work of the Massachusetts institution, and Lieutenant Governor Zenas W. Bliss also addressed the assemblage of Tech men, who had gathered from all over the state.

Rev. James Bancroft, for the past five years curate at St. John's Church, Providence, who has accepted a call to become rector of St. John's Church at Lowell, will begin his duties Sunday, May 22, his last Sunday in the Providence church being May 15. Rev. Mr. Bancroft was educated for the priesthood at the General Seminary in the city of New York, receiving his preliminary preparation at Columbia University. The curacy of St. John's Church in Providence was his first charge, going there direct from his ordination, after graduating from the Seminary.

SHEFFIELD MEASURE FAVORED.

Congress Receives Report Granting Citizens Right to Build Drawbridge at Warren and Barrington.

The House committee on interstate and foreign commerce has made a favorable report on Congressman Sheffield's bill, granting authority to the citizens of Warren to build a drawbridge over the Palmer or Warren river. An amendment was inserted, however, giving to the War Department the power to order the removal of the bridge whenever this shall be regarded as necessary in the interests of navigation. The bill, introduced by Congressman Sheffield February 24, was reported with an amendment March 20, and referred to the House calendar. Meanwhile it had been considered by the committee on interstate and foreign commerce.

The bill gives Warren and Barrington, or either of them, authority to construct, maintain and operate a bridge without a draw, and with approaches thereto, across the Palmer or Warren river, at a point suitable to the interests of navigation, at or near the point of their existing bridge across the river. The right to alter, amend or repeal this act, including the right to require the insertion of a suitable draw in the bridge herein authorized, or the removal of said bridge, in whole or in part, in all cases at the expense of the owners thereof, is expressly reserved.

In a recent report Lieutenant Colonel J. C. Sanford, corps of engineers, stated regarding this bridge: "It is by no means certain, however, that in the future this river will not be again needed for navigation. To provide against such a contingency, it would seem that the bill should contain nothing that might render more difficult the removal or alteration of the bridge, when necessary, and, while the act to regulate the construction of bridges over navigable waters, approved March 23, 1906, and quoted in the bill, would seem to make it possible to cause such removal or alteration, the insertion of the words 'without a draw' in the bill might, I should think, be used to support arguments in opposition to such removal or alteration. For this reason I would respectfully recommend that the words 'without a draw' be omitted."

APRIL.

[John Northern Hilliard, in Lippincott's.]

After all is said and done—
Shine or not the gracious sun,
Blow or not the pungent breeze,
Touched with Southern spiceries;
Bend a sky so gray or blue,
Bring the morning frost or dew,
Be the grasses lush or dried,
Meadows bare or daisy-pied,
Be the furrows sludged with sleet,
Bare the earth or green with wheat—
Still is April fairer far,
Than the days of Summer are.

When the first tantaras ring,
April, hoyden of the spring
Tells a dance and holds to us
Cups to tempt a Tantalus:
Then the blood begins to stir;
Old and young we follow her.
Witch she is (this to enswear);
None her magic can forswear:
And her weeping is a wile,
Full of danger as her smile;
Worthless then the will of schools,—
April calls—we're April's fools.

Hampton—Was anything left after the debts of millionaire Plummer were paid?

Mrs.—You're a deceiving brute!

Mr.—Why, darling! What do you mean?

Mrs.—Didn't you quit drinking on New Year's Day? And here you are fixing up a fishing excursion the minute warm weather arrives!—[Cleveland Leader.

A HELPING HAND.

Is Gladly Extended by a Newport Citizen.

There are many enthusiastic citizens in Newport prepared to tell their experience for the public good. Testimony from such a source is the best of evidence, and will prove a "helping hand" to scores of readers. Read the following statement:

W. H. Ackers, 17 Third Street, Newport, R. I., says: "A steady ache and lameness in my back caused me a great deal of misery. Every cold I contracted settled in my kidneys and at such times it was about all I could do to get around. Any little exercise so greatly increased the pain in my back that it became almost unbearable. When I arose from a sitting position I had to place my hands against my loins for support. I knew that my kidneys were in a bad condition, as the secretions were irregular in passage and contained sediment. A number of kinds of various kinds had failed to help me in the least. I chanced to hear about Doan's Kidney Pills and procured them from Wright & Hoy's Drug Store. The contents of four or five boxes entirely relieved me and on several occasions since then when I have taken Doan's Kidney Pills the results have been of the same satisfactory nature."

EXCLUSIVE ASSOCIATED PRESS SERVICE FOR NEWPORT.

VULNERABLE AND INVULNERABLE TRUSTS.

Two more box board manufacturers have pleaded guilty to combining in restraint of trade and paid their fines of $2,000 each, making $10,000 which the government has thus far collected from this combination without a trial.

These companies were never merged. One company did not buy the hundred or more companies which it was proposed to unite so that there should be no competition between them. While maintaining their corporate individuality they agreed upon a uniform scale of prices, or to sell through a single agency, or in other ways to suppress all competition between them. This is so plainly a violation of law that the wonder is that business men with legal advisers should engage in it, partly because of the certainty of prosecution and partly because it is so easy to merge companies by purchase, and that process of consolidation has not yet been held invalid except in one or two cases which are now pending on appeal.

The government has broken up the General Paper Company; a Western association of paper manufacturers who did not merge but sold through a single agency, and an Eastern combination of wall paper makers who had a similar association, and this combination of box board makers. But if one company should buy up all the box board factories in the country, or two thirds of them, would that be an unlawful combination in restraint of trade?

That question involves all the big industrial corporations and is the one involved in cases which have recently been argued before the Supreme Court, and the death of Justice Brewer has given rise to the report of the postponement of the decision till the cases shall be argued again in the presence of his successor. Thus far the trust which has been formed by the purchase of the competing concerns has proved invulnerable to legal attack.

TO CHECK INFANT MORTALITY.

The subject of infant mortality is receiving large attention in these days, but none too much for the importance of the matter to the individual, the state and the nation. The prevalence of the new interest in the conditions of infant life and its preservation is shown by the fact that conferences on the subject are not rare now, whereas a few years ago they were unknown and even unthought of. These consider the welfare of the child from every standpoint the causes of infant mortality and the possible remedies for the terrible slaughter of infants which takes place every year in this country. As a result of these conferences it has been found that there are a number of causes which contribute to the mortality among infants. This high death rate is naturally more noticeable in the large cities, where the conditions are less favorable for the infants, but it is a problem which needs some attention even in places where the population is not so congested as in the big centres of human habitation.

Among the most prominent causes of infant mortality are poverty, intemperance on the part of parents, labor by women before and after childbirth, impure food, particularly milk, and the ignorance of mothers as to the proper care of their little ones. All these are in a degree preventable with proper attention, even under the conditions of life which prevail in large cities. The trouble is that no one until comparatively recently has seemed to give any attention to this subject or take any interest in the welfare of these helpless victims of circumstances. At last a crusade has been begun in behalf of the babies and the fight is being made for them in many centres of notivity. There is no question that it will now be waged until the terrible death rate which at present prevails is materially reduced and the infants of the land are given a better chance to live, and it will not be true as it is today that one of every seven children born in New York dies within a year, although the mortality rate has already been reduced somewhat in that city.

Here in Rhode Island something is being done in this direction and there are at present before the legislature two bills of great importance in this connection. One of these is for the prevention of the importation into the state of cattle which are diseased. At present there is no law to stop the introduction of cattle afflicted with tuberculosis, and the result is a high degree of infant mortality from this infectious disease and the inoculation of many more with the germs of the malady. Strangely enough this proposed law is opposed by the farmers, and it is expected that a hard fight will need to be made by the health authorities in order to secure the passage of the bill. What is particularly needed in this connection and at this special juncture is a strong public sentiment in favor of the measure and a loud public demand for its adoption in the interests of the helpless little ones of the state, who are being made the victims of tuberculosis in such large numbers through the medium of impure milk from diseased cows, but the public is not so thoroughly aroused as to the importance of the subject and the demand for the passage of the bill is not so great as it should be.

The other measure is for the licensing of institutions and persons engaged in the care of infants. It is a recognized fact among those who are concerned in the care of infants that no institution, however well managed, can take the place of the home and the mother in looking out for the welfare of the infant. So it is of the highest importance that any who undertake such work for pay shall be under the supervision of some competent authority and amenable to the law for proper attention to the little ones in their charge. There has been one recent instance in this state of an institution of this sort requiring investigation of the high rate of mortality among the inmates, and this is at least a contributory cause for the introduction of the present bill.

These two measures ought to be passed without delay at the present session of the legislature.

LOBBYING AS A PROFESSION.

There is always the possibility in the case of a lobbyist that he cannot bribe anybody, but obtains money by representing that he can. There is enough ground for believing that there are purchasable men in any legislature to make it comparatively easy for a lobbyist to have money entrusted to him which he may convert to his own uses. If the desired legislation is secured he will claim that he accomplished it; if it is not secured he will say that he did not have money enough; in either case he may have made no attempt to bribe any one.

If there is a lobby working around Congress the probabilities are that it is making a bluff. Men capable of bribery are generally found out before they go so far along as Congress. A Congressional district is a large constituency; men of real ability and who are thoroughly known to the community eagerly seek elections, and the shysters and blackmailers who are grubbing around for tainted money in the smaller fields of politics rarely succeed in imposing themselves upon a Congressional district. It is many years since any member of Congress has been proved to be corrupt, and within the past 15 or 20 years very few have been under strong suspicion or have been associated with questionable proceedings. Once in a while there is a man who seems to be "on the make," but it is a great while since it has even been suggested that an act was put through Congress by improper means.

In view of the Alds case it is impossible to assume that Buckley must have been bluffing the president of a life insurance company when he said he needed $500 each for six state senators. The president refused to participate in bribery, whatever the results might be. If other corporation presidents assumed the same stand legislative corruption would perforce cease, and the wonder is that it does not cease through the fear of exposure, for public sentiment is strongly aroused over political corruption and punishment has reached many of the crooks.

The Taft railroad bill, as it comes from the House committee on interstate commerce, bears little resemblance to the measure prepared by Attorney General Wickersham at the instance of President Taft. The majority report stamps the proposed legislation as more important than any preceding acts for the control of interstate and foreign railroads, involving no undue burdens or interference with railway management and conferring large benefits upon the shippers and public at large. The House will be asked to make the bill privileged, to expedite consideration and passage.

The Senate has finally adopted the House bill amending the employers' liability law to give the state courts concurrent jurisdiction with the federal judges in dealing with suits for damages growing out of accidents. This bill has been sharply opposed, an almost bitter discussion arising concerning the rights of the states to deal with questions growing out of the liability law. The amendment is regarded as a marked advance in the opportunities afforded employes to bring suits promptly to trial.

New York will have a firecracker-less Fourth of July if Mayor Gaynor's orders are carried into effect, as they undoubtedly will be. Under these orders no permits will be granted for the sale of fireworks from June 16 until July 10. It will be possible to lay in a stock before June 10, but if the dealers cannot sell near the Fourth of July they will not have a large stock on hand, and the result will be that the Fourth in New York at least will lose its sound and dangerous features.

A proof of the early spring is the announcement that the Adirondack lakes are clear of ice, for the first time on April 1 in 20 years. There is little need of this additional evidence of the early season, for everybody in Newport knows it—from the weather, the budding trees, the return of the birds, the greening grass, the smoke of bonfires, the general clearing up of gardens and grounds, and that unmistakable spring feeling which everybody has.

Commander Peary is done with northern exploration for all time, nor will he lead or accompany an expedition in search of the South Pole. This is his own positive statement. He is apparently satisfied that he has reached the North Pole, and this was the goal of his ambition.

THE APRIL MAGAZINES

The North American Review for April opens with an interesting and important symposium entitled "The Proposed Changes at Harvard." The contributors are President Finley of the College of the City of New York, President Thwing of Western Reserve University and Adelbert College and President David Starr Jordan of the Leland Stanford Junior University. Senator Thomas H. Carter contributes an article on "The Postoffice as a Depository for Savings" and the same subject, from a different point of view, is treated by Harold Stone, in an article entitled "The Postal Savings Bank—a Suggestion." "The Other Side of Conservation" is discussed by George L. Knapp. Samuel M. Gardenshire contributes an article on "Bribery in the Legislatures." A literary appreciation from a new point of view, of "Browning and Sainte-Beuve," is contributed by Gamaliel Bradford, Jr.

"The Social Ideal and the Christian Church," by Bishop Chauncey B. Brewster, completes a former article relating to the church's relation to the promotion of the social idea. A member of Congress, Victor Murdock, discusses "The Insurgent Movement in Congress." An article on "Contemporary Music" is contributed by Horatio Parker, an unquestioned authority. Borden Parker Bowne, writes convincingly on "Woman and Democracy." Aspects of the anti-suffrage position are stated in a short article by Mrs. William F. Scott. Walter K. Fuller, a member of the Los Angeles Bar, has a timely article on "Is the Federal Corporation Tax Law Constitutional?" Sydney Brooks, the English writer, gives data indicating what may lead to the downfall of English liberalism, in an article entitled "The Debacle of English Liberalism."

In the literary department the following books are reviewed: R. A. Streatfield's "Handel," Ernest Newman's "Hugo Wolf," Hubert H. Parry's "Johann Sebastian Bach," Henry T. Finck's "Success in Music and How it is Won," D. G. Mason's "A Child's Guide to Music," Birge Harrison's "Landscape Painting," F. R. Read's and Rev. B. Camm's "Rood Screens and Rood Lofts," Sherrill's "Stained Glass Tours in England," Edward Dillon's "The Arts of Japan," Bradley's "Illuminated Manuscripts," Frank Weitenkampf's "How to Appreciate Prints" and Benson's "The Reaping."

As spring comes around again, the Woman's Home Companion's cover design for its Easter issue, by Fanny Y. Cory strikes an April note which is carried out in the entire magazine. A full-page painting by Balfour Ker is one of the tenderest subject ever attempted by this artist, and "Old-Time Gardens in the Connecticut Valley" by Charles Edward Hooper, with illustrations by Herman Pfeifer, is an unusually artistic feature. "The Campaign of Hope," the tireless fight against tuberculosis, is waged with undiminished enthusiasm and is awakening people throughout the country.

"The Empty House," a story in two parts by Elizabeth Stuart Phelps, has its first instalment in this number. It is a story for every woman with a busy, self-sacrificing husband to read. "The House of Healing" by Juliet Wilbor Tompkins is gaining new friends, and short stories fill out the list of fiction.

In the household department Margaret Sangster, Woods Hutchinson, M. D., Kate V. Saint-Maur, Doctor Jean Williams contribute. "May-Pole Dances," "Wood-Block Printing," "A Perfume Garden," "Happiness Chest," Miss Farmer's Recipes, Evelyn Parsons' Summer Embroideries, Music, Art—are some of the contents of this magazine. The regular departments, Miss Gould's fashion section and the pages devoted to the Younger Reader, are not forgotten.

OPENING OF THE TROUT SEASON

[Westerly Sun.]

It is safe to say that the anglers of this section and doubtless all over Rhode Island and Connecticut have been busy for the past few days arranging their fishing tackle, for the trout season opened Friday. The outlook for the season was never brighter. The early approach of spring, together with the fact that the brooks have been well stocked with fingerlings during the past closed season, should provide good sport.

While the trout season is booked to start off well, as the result of a warm March, unless April brings more rain than this month has the brooks will be in poor condition for fishing long before the usual time for low water. The brook water now is not very cold. The streams are comparatively low for this time of the year, and the trout are well up the stream, as an inquisitive fisherman can learn by looking under any bridge over a brook and for these reasons the first fishing should be better than April fishing usually is. But with the brooks now only at the stage they are usually in during May, the later fishing is likely to be poor.

DEFENDS THE CATTLE PRODUCERS.

Murdo MacKenzie, representing the cattle raisers of the West, defended the producers against the charge of responsibility for the increase cost of beef, before the Senate committee investigating the high cost of living. "The increased price of corn, higher wages we must pay our help, and the increased cost of everything else we have to use in our business has compelling us to raise the price of cattle," declared Mr. MacKenzie. He said the rise in price had begun early in April, 1909. The witness laid some of the responsibility at the door of the new tariff law. Although the duty had been removed from hides, he said, the price of shoes and saddles had gone up, and this had made necessary high wages to the stockraisers' help. Mr. MacKenzie said it cost 35 to 40 cents a day to feed each head of cattle and as an expert feeder could not increase the weight per head more than three pounds a day, at a value of about eight cents a pound it was impossible for stock raisers to raise corn fed cattle at a profit.

Mr. MacKenzie owns large ranches in South Dakota and Texas and produced nearly 50,000 head of range cattle last year from two ranches. He said he had been able to make much more out of the land he bought 20 years ago than from cattle raising, which he asserted the high cost of living had made an unprofitable industry.

THE PASSING OF A FORGOTTEN EXPLORER.

[Baltimore Sun.]

The grove of giant redwoods at Mariposa, Cal., has been one of the marvels of the geography books so long that it is somewhat astonishing to learn that the first white man to set eyes upon it has just died. His name was Galen Clark, and he was born in New Hampshire in 1814. Going to California during the gold rush, he soon found the scenery of that magnificent country more attractive than its gold, and so began wandering from place to place. One day, in the summer of 1857, he happened by chance upon the great grove of trees. His story of his discovery was laughed at as an incredible traveler's tale, but before long he guided others to the spot, and since then the Mariposa redwoods have been one of the recognized natural wonders of the world...

Clark was no mere wanderer, but a man of considerable education and intelligence. Stricken by tuberculosis in the early sixties, he returned to his beloved redwoods to live in the open, and so efficient was the pure air of those heights that he completely recovered and lived to be 96. Le Conte and Muir, the scientist explorer, held him in great esteem. He aided them in their geological investigations and contributed much to our knowledge of the fauna and flora of California. For many years he was in charge of the Yosemite Park, and there he has been buried, in a tomb hewed out of the solid rock by his own hands, and with a pair of young redwoods growing before it.

J. PLUVIUS'S ACCOMPANIMENT.

[Pittsburg Gazette-Times.]

During the present musical season much popularity has been gained by a little song with the odd title, "It is not Raining Rain to Me; It's Raining Violets." It is a tuneful bit of melody and has been used for encore purposes with great success. It was during a recent recital that the quaint bit attained real distinction. The affair took place at the Rittenhouse up a wet, blustery evening, and as the night wore on the storm increased to the proportions of a blizzard. The wind arose until its rear blended weirdly with the music and the intermissions were punctuated by boisterous clatterings of hailstones against the windows. During the tenor solo by Paul K. Harper the storm reached the height of its fury and the applause which followed his effort was mingled with shrill echoings of the storm-king's wrath...

As the singer arose for an encore a perfect deluge of rain smote the windows and when the orchestra struck up the tinkling prelude of the familiar air a smile broke over the audience.

"S-s-s-s-swish!" went the torrent outside.

"D-r-r-r-" shivered the audience.

"It is not raining rain"—began the tenor, but it was too much for even the politest of audiences and a storm of laughter followed that even included the soloist.

EXPORT FARM PRODUCTS INCREASE.

Exported farm products of the United States are steadily rising in value, while in many cases the exports of manufactures show a decline in the same comparative period. Foreign countries were willing to pay higher prices in every instance for farm products during February this year than they were in February a year ago. The export price table issued by the bureau of statistics of the Department of Commerce and Labor shows a long list of increases ranging from 20 per cent upward. The prices given there are exclusive of freights and represent merely the prices at the time of exportation.

Taken in comparison with those figures which are quoted in explanation of the higher cost of living, this newest table makes it apparent that exported food-stuffs have advanced abroad as well as at home. Salted and fresh beef exported alone show slight decreases in price for February, as compared with the same period a year ago.

EAST GREENWICH ACADEMY.

Bishop Hamilton's Plea for Support, Under New Management, met by the Conference.

A strong plea for the continuance of East Greenwich Academy was made by Bishop John W. Hamilton at the New England Southern Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church at Attleboro Friday. The bishop said in part:

"If I had not thought that my presence was absolutely necessary I should not be here. I understand that the situation here is critical in connection with this institution. Since I arrived I have heard several suggestions regarding this school.

"We are told there is no longer any necessity for such an institution as ours because of the advanced public school systems. We say that we are overrun by people who will send their children to our schools. These people pay their regular public school tax and then support schools of their own rather than have their children go to schools where there is no moral education.

"Since I came here I have made a serious study of this proposition. I have talked with Bishop Mallalieu, with the district superintendent and the principal of the school, and I have discovered a lot of things. I do not blame the man who is at the head of that institution, and I am not surprised that he has handed in his resignation, for he says that he has not the support of the Methodist ministers of this conference.

"Now if you will only support me in my plans I will take charge of that institution for a year, and see if we cannot put it on its feet as it should be. But we must have a different kind of support than what you have given to this institution. Do you know that last year there was only $700 paid in for this school. A great debt is owed by the members of this conference to Bishop Mallalieu, who, although approximately 80 years of age, paid $1,800 into that institution last year."

Bishop Hamilton said that after several conferences with Bishop Mallalieu, the district superintendent and the trustees of East Greenwich Academy, he had formulated a plan whereby he had secured a young man to take charge of that institution, and as he is unmarried, he had an experienced matron to take charge. He said that the proposition to make it a boys' school and exclude the girls is not part of his plan. He asked that the ministers pledge themselves to raise $1,000 $1,500 or $2,000, with which to send a number of boys from Porto Rico to the school.

At the request of Bishop Hamilton, the roll was called and subscriptions of from $5 to $100 were pledged, and over $1,800 raised. The district superintendents were appointed to receive the subscriptions and pay them to a treasurer of this special fund, to be appointed later.

A DISAPPOINTING PLAY.

"The Soul Kiss" as Presented Here Must Have Differed from the "Hit" in Large Cities.

"The Soul Kiss" as presented when it made a hit in the big cities and the production given at the Opera House Friday evening must have been two different things. What Newport was given was so unpleasant and so unsatisfying that some of the audience refused to see the show through. It had not the polish of one of the plays which was refused a license, and yet was fully as suggestive. There were perhaps some features of merit, but on the whole the production was so disappointing that few who attended were disposed to find anything to praise.

There was trouble with the electric light all through the first act, trouble on the lines outside, which necessitated throwing the house into darkness during the intermission, until a change in supply could be made. Finally the gas footlights were turned on, but they had been out of use so long that they flared in a way to make some nervous. Aside from this the stage work did not run smoothly, and even the spot light erred in its cues and marred the general effect.

FUNERAL OF JOHN J. DONOVAN.

The funeral of John J. Donovan took place this morning from his late residence on Warner street to St Joseph's Church, where a solemn high mass was celebrated, Rev. James Mahon being the celebrant, Rev. W. A. Doran, D. D., deacon, Rev. John O'Rourke sub-deacon, and Rev. Martin F. Roddy of St. Mary's Church master of ceremonies. Rev. P. F. Sullivan of Jamestown was also at the altar. There was a large attendance, including Superintendent J. Howland Gardiner, Port Steward William H. Sullivan, and a large number of the older employes of the New England Navigation Company. Mr. James H. Comstock, formerly in the employ of the company here, came from Stonington to attend. A special musical program was rendered during the mass by a quartet consisting of Mrs. Shanteler-Price, Mrs. Hayes-Miller and Messrs. H. Sullivan and Kelley. The interment was in St. Columba's cemetery, the bearers being Michael Donovan, Edward J. Butler, Charles W. Pascoe, James P. Whitford, Charles L. Ehrhardt and John P. Lynch.

For the West Bay service—Narragansett Transportation Company, $24; Jamestown and Newport Ferry Company, $28.75 per day.

For the two services combined—Jamestown and Newport Ferry Company, $40 per day.

For the Artillery boat service—Max Schade, $10 per day.

Mr. John A. Carr, who is suffering from an attack of pneumonia, is reported as slightly better.

A force of men are at work enlarging the office of the Ferry company, to make room for the ticket office of the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad and the New England Navigation Company.

CHANGES IN TRAIN TIMES.

There will be some changes in the running of trains over the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad, beginning Monday. This is caused by the change in the matter of Providence trains, which hereafter will be run independent of the Newport trains, so that a wait which has been made for years at Mansfield will be avoided. In consequence the trains will leave Newport at 9:02 and 1:02 will leave a little later and the in trains heretofore out at 1:02 and 5:02 will arrive earlier.

FIRST ATTACK ON STOCK GAMBLING.

phia, and Campbell is their representative there. A representative of Price & Co., has been convicted of running a bucket shop in Norfolk, Va., and one of the indicted men connected with the Price concern is a fugitive from justice in another jurisdiction. It is believed that teh return of these indictments and the prosecution of the defendants therein will do a great deal toward destroying the operations of bucket shops throughout the country."

The government's sleuths went at the enemy with his own fire, and, it is said did not hesitate to do a little wire tapping now and then to get their evidence. Taking for granted that the charge often made that bucket shops secure quotations by tapping wires which carry them to legitimate consumers is true the detectives tapped onto more than one communication being sent between those indicted. Employes of some of the shops were served with subpoenas and called before the grand jury to tell what they know about the methods of operation.

Violation of the law, upon conviction, entails a maximum penalty of $10,000 fine and two years' imprisonment.

POLO CLUB GROUNDS AGAIN RENTED.

DeBlois & Eldridge have rented for Seth Low, George Gordon King and Mrs. Louis B. McCagg land on Atlantic, Winans and Commonwealth avenues, to the Westchester Polo Club, for the season of 1910. This is the land which the polo club has occupied for several years. On account of the interest in the International matchmuch interest will be taken in polo during the coming summer and many of the prominent players, both English and American, will be here this season.

DEATH OF THOMAS CLARK.

Mr. Thomas Clark, formerly of this city, died at his home at Somerville, Mass., Friday night. He was a first-class machinist and years ago held a position with the Newport Brass Foundry Company. He married the widow of George Davis of Providence, a sister of Mr. Charles Ickerton and of the late Mrs. William Alderson of this city. He is survived by a widow and seven grown children. He was an Englishman by birth and often crossed the Atlantic on business as well as for pleasure. The body will be interred here.

LOCAL BRIEFS.

—Mr. and Mrs. Richard J. Sharkey have returned from their wedding trip.

—Mr. William E. Dennis, Jr., has gone to California, to be with his father.

—Mrs. J. DeForest Danielson of Providence is guest of Mrs. Hamilton Fish Webster.

—Captain Monson's fishing sloop Alice is out at Williams & Manchester's for her spring overhauling.

—William Loftus has rented, for Mrs. A. E. Kelley, her upper tenement at 10 Everett street to W. N. Holmes.

—Collier's publishes a portrait of Mr. Joseph P. Colton, jr., one of the counsel for Glavis in the Ballinger-Pinchot investigation in Washington.

—A. O'D. Taylor has rented, for Mrs. C. C. A. Stevens, her furnished cottage at 13 Bay View avenue to W. H. Bevins, U. S. N., for the summer season.

—C. H. Wrightington has rented for Mr. and Mrs. Philip J. Macvicar, to Dr. Wm. Irvine, U. S. N., their furnished cottage on the easterly side of Prairie avenue.

—Charles Greene, N. Newman, S. Miller and P. DeForest of New York; H. Luck of Providence, Mr. and Mrs. Doyle and E. Collins of Boston are among the arrivals at the United States Hotel.

—Large liberty parties were over from the Training Station Friday night and this afternoon. This is the first time the boys have had to spend their last pay, which was dealt out to them a week ago.

—Summer must be approaching. Now for the fourth day this week open cars are being operated, and tomorrow the cars to run every half-hour between Iseer and Fall River, as in the good old summer time.

—Mr. and Mrs. Charles Guerin, A. Myer and M. A. Wall of New York; Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Burns of Chicago, B. Bryer of Boston, J. H. Snyder of Reading, Pa., F. R. Hutchinson of Atlantic City and W. H. Barney of Providence are registered at the Perry House.

—The Superior Court will sit Monday at 11 o'clock, for the assigning of cases and such other matters as may come before it. Two cases are set for this date—the appeal in the Melville Bull case and the appointment of a trustee under the will of Abby S. A. White.

—C. B. Anderson has power boat Marion on the hospital list, the result of a collision with fishing steamer Ardent. Even if the Marion is in distress he keeps on fishing and Friday caught about 1,000 herring up the bay. This is the best catch yet, and shows that the herring are coming in fast.

—Tug Solicitor, Captain O'Neill, made an effort at high water this afternoon to move schooner Lucy K. Friend from her position in front of the Saunders ferry slip at Lopez wharf, but there was not enough water and the attempt was futile. The tides are running low and it looks bad for any movement until after the tides have improved.

—Steamer Old Colony has been laid up at Providence for a while. The Rhode Island, which has been laid up at Providence, will be taken in tow tonight by one of the big freighters and towed to Stonington, probably to be laid up with the Connecticut. This will probably be the last appearance of the Rhode Island as a passenger steamer in Rhode Island waters.

—Captain Jesse Welles is here to put New York 30-footer Caprice in commission for the coming season. The Caprice is hauled out at the shipyard. She was bought last winter from Mrs. Vanderbilt by Mr. Ralph N. Ellis, one of the old Newport thirty owners, and will be taken to the westward to start the racing about New York, where most of the class make headquarters.

—Elizabeth M. S. Marsh of Boston, William A. Stedman of Garden City and Louis A. Stedman of Brooklyn have sold to Emma F. Burdick and Ella P. Grant, wife of G. H. Grant of Providence, their one-half interest in the estate bounded east on Thames street, south on Richmond street, west on land of the Newport Gas Light Company, and north on Richmond street.

—The tax assessors this morning began their public session at the City hall. These will continue until the close of business April 11, after which the assessors will go about to see improvements and changes. The tax books are dated as of noon Friday, all property being assessed as of that date, so that transfers made after that time will not be considered in assessing the tax.

ON TOUR OF INSPECTION.

Students of Library School Connected With Pratt Institute Guests of Mr. D. B. Fearing at Luncheon.

The students of the Library School connected with Pratt Institute, Brooklyn, came to Newport today on the tour of inspection of libraries in New England, which is a part of the regular curriculum. They left Brooklyn Friday of last week accompanied by Miss Mary W. Plummer, director of the school, and during the past week have visited Boston and places in that vicinity. Friday they were in Providence, inspecting the Public Library, Providence Athenaeum and the College and John Carter Brown Libraries at Brown University.

They arrived by an early train this morning and went first to the Free Library, and after inspecting the rooms there to the Redwood Library. Here an hour was spent and at noon, accompanied by Miss Leavitt of the Free Library and Mr. Richard Bliss of the Redwood Library, they were driven to the residence of Mr. Daniel B. Fearing, where the remainder of the day was spent. Mr. Fearing, assisted by his librarian, Miss M. A. Collar, who was for several years connected with Pratt Institut, received his guests and the wonders of the Fearing Library, which is unique not only in this country but in the world, being devoted entirely to fish and fish literature, were inspected by the visitors.

At 1 o'clock a luncheon was served and the remainder of the visit was given up to an inspection of the grounds and a further inspection of the library and the many rare books and trophies in the collection. The visitors left by a late afternoon train for Providence, to return to their studies at Brooklyn, with pleasant recollections of their visit to Newport and the hospitality of Mr. Fearing.

LAST IN SERIES OF DANCES AT WAR COLLEGE.

Hourigan, commanding the Naval Training Station; Mrs. Bristol, wife of Commander Mark L. Bristol, Inspector in charge of the Torpedo Station; Mrs. Smith, wife of Captain Roy C. Smith of the Naval War College and Mrs. Byrnes, wife of Medical Inspector James C. Byrnes, commanding the naval hospital. The committee in charge consisted of Commander Hourigan, Assistant Paymaster D. B. Wainwright, Commander Frank Marble, Lieutenant Commander W. W. Phelps, Major John H. Russell, Lieutenant K. G. Castleman and Surgeon George T. Smith.

"THE SUFFRAGETTE."

The Annual Play Given by the Girls' Club of Trinity Church a Pronounced Success.

The annual entertainment given by the Girls' Club of Trinity Church, Friday evening in the guild hall, was a pronounced success, a clever little one-act play, "The Suffragette," being presented. The stage was attractive with palms and the setting was effective. Miss Kate Holland played before the performance and for the dancing which followed. The members of the club acted as ushers.

Miss Dorothy Foster as Mrs. Herbert Mallory, a young married woman, was remarkably at her ease, speaking distinctly and acting well. Miss Lilian Herline as Susan, her daughter, aged ten, made an excellent impression by her unconsciousness. Miss Lillian Petersen as Mrs. John Wilson, her mother who lives with her, The Suffragette, who desired to be arrested, was the typical strong-minded woman, and Miss Esther Lawson was capital as Maggie Conroy, a professional sharper. Miss Hope Bliss and Miss Abbie Tilley were acceptable in the minor roles of Miss Gates, reporter for the Daily Telegram, and Katie, the Irish servant.

Credit for the success of the entertainment is due Miss Anna C. R. Dunn, vice president of the club, under whose direction the rehearsals were held, and also the members of the cast.

EMMA REBEKAH LODGE'S WHIST.

The entertainment committee of Emma Rebekah Lodge gave a whist party at the residence of Mrs. Theodore Bigelke on Main avenue Friday evening. The house was decorated with American flags, cut flowers and greens, by Mr. Bigelke and Mr. Vermont B. Anderson. There was a large attendance, 20 tables being played at whist. The first prizes were awarded to Mrs. John Gifford, a fancy table cover, and to Mrs. Kenyon, a silver fat brush, and the consolations to Miss Mary Gillis, a hat pin, and to Miss Tilly Champlin, a necktie. Light refreshments were served during the evening and at midnight a luncheon was served. The whist was followed by dancing and during the evening Mr. Henry rendered a number of selections on the piano.

THE NEW TRACK WORK.

Tonight the new Broadway rails will be laid as far out as Friendship street. Rather more than the usual amount of digging needed to be done in the vicinity of Bay View avenue, where a blue clay was found which had been so attacked by the frost each winter that the track was thrown badly each spring. This was dug out and a new filling put in, for which purpose the construction train has been running back and forth over the new rails, bringing supplies material from other parts of the ditch. There is a great quantity of material to be hauled away, as the filling above the ties is supposed to be all crushed stone. A great deal of small boulder stone has been taken from the trench.

LAW WOULD OBVIATE TROUBLES

Senate Judiciary Committee Gives Hearing on the New Dog License Measure.

The advisability of passing a law which would require every owner of a dog to place on the animal's collar a tag having its registered number distinctly marked thereon was considered by the Senate Judiciary committee at a public hearing Friday.

Another act taken up provides that any person may kill any dog, whether such dog be licensed or not, without previous complaint to any court or notice to the owner or keeper of such dog. If the dog injures his person, family or property, or if the animal is known to be vicious or dangerous, and the person killing him has reasonable cause to believe is proceeding without provocation to injure his person, family or property, and it is reasonably necessary to kill such dog in order to prevent such injury.

Secretary John J. Dunn of the State Board of Agriculture stated the bill emanated from the board and had for its particular purpose the protection of the sheep industry in this state. State Veterinarian J. S. Pollard, H. J. Bascom and Professor H. J. Wheeler expressed the opinion that much of the existing dog troubles would be obviated if the dog officers did their duty better.

GOOD POSITIONS IN HOTELS FOR WOMEN.

[Anna Steese Richardson, in Woman's Home Companion.]

A girl with a head for figures and a well developed bump of accuracy will make no mistake in starting her career as a hotel worker in the linen-room. The best means for securing this post is ability with the needle. A seamstress who is quick, neat and resourceful will have no difficulty in securing a position under a hotel housekeeper. In small hotels, only one seamstress is employed but in the larger houses there may be a staff of half a dozen. The seamstress does all the mending, makes up all bed and table linen, hems towels, mends curtains, hangings, bureau scarfs, bed-spreads, etc., and when rooms are to be renovated or refurnished she is expected to make silk or tapestry hangings, valances, portieres, etc., from fabrics purchased by the yard or bolt.

When she has proven her worth in this capacity, she is in line for promotion to the linenroom. She issues bedroom supplies of every description, from hangings and curtains to sample packages of tooth paste. She charges each chambermaid with the towels, sheets, pillow cases, etc. issued to her, and all laundry from bedrooms passes through her hands.

It will be seen that this is a position of responsibility which requires decision and judgment. She must be able to settle disputes among maids without consulting the housekeeper, and she must guard the hotel management against loss. She must be neat in appearance, alert in movements and possessed of concentration and energy. Her wages will be anywhere from $25 to $35 a month, to which is added room, board and laundry. In a small hotel the linen room girl is apt to work from 8 a. m. to 6 p. m. In larger hotels, where there may be many arrivals after nightfall and many calls for fresh linen, several girls work in shifts, as the clerks do.

HINDS FOR SPEAKER.

Talk of Parliamentary Clerk, Not a Member, Not Serious.

Extent to Which the Democrats Will Go—Threats of Tariff Oratory—To Celebrate Completion of Canal.

[Washington correspondence of the News.]

WASHINGTON, April 1.—The proposition to depose Speaker Cannon and elect in his place Asher C. Hinds, who has been parliamentary adviser to many Speakers, should not be taken too seriously. In the first place, Hinds is not a member of the House, and, while there is nothing in the constitution requiring the Speaker to be a member of the House there is everything in custom and tradition requiring it. All past Speakers of the House have been members of the body. There are many who point to the fact that the Speaker of the British House of Commons is simply and only a parliamentarian and believe that the same rule should apply here. But the English Speaker is a member of the commons even though not a party leader. There is now every indication that the presiding officer of the American House of Representatives will be shorn of practically all of his power as a party leader, but that the House will go outside of its own membership to find its most important officer is beyond belief. Yet, whoever is elected to the chair, Asher Hinds will probably be the real parliamentarian of the body for years to come, as he has been for years past.

It is an interesting question as to just how far the Democrats will go in the matter of curtailing the Speaker's power. What is done by this Congress is liable to become a precedent for future Congresses. Now, the Democrats expect to carry the next Congress. If they do they will be to a great degree bound by the rules they now help to make. Just how will Champ Clark feel about depriving the Speaker of the power of appointing committees? It is an open secret that Champ himself expects to be Speaker in 1911. How far will he go in the direction of making the occupant of the chair a mere presiding officer and nothing more? And how would he take to the suggestion that Asher Hinds be made the Speaker of the House, with the implied obligation of keeping him in the office for several Congresses to come? It must be remembered that the Democrats must furnish the vast majority of the votes when any revolution is pulled off in the House. Therefore the probable attitude of the Democrats is a factor not to be overlooked.

Nevertheless there is a possibility of further modifications of the House rules and a rather remote chance of a new Speaker as well. Those insurgents who voted against taking Cannon bodily from the chair are hearing from home. As a result they are not happy. Speaker Cannon has already called them cowards, and that is not a marker to what some of their constituents have called them. If a few more redhot letters come such as most of the near insurgents have been receiving they are liable to fire Cannon out merely to save their own political lives. That is but one more illustration of the fact that the real insurgent movement is not in Congress, but among the voters themselves.

While tariff wars and rumors of wars are now at an end the tariff question may still bob up in Congress. It is said that some of the Senate insurgents do not intend that this session shall go by without the country hearing from them as to the connection between high prices and high tariff. They may not exactly say, "I told you so," but they will seek in other language to convey the impression that they did tell us so. For my own part I am ready to admit it without their assurance. At least I know they told us something to the extent of several volumes of the Congressional Record, and it might as well have been that. The occasion which the insurgent Senators will seize and man-handle is the consideration of the tariff commission bill. If they are determined to turn loose this oratory the rest of us might as well be resigned. There is no known force in nature that will stop a tariff speech.

Washington is already organizing a determined fight to hold a great world's fair in this city in celebration of the completion of the Panama canal. San Francisco and San Diego, Cal., are also in the race and have recently made the floors of the two Houses yellow with telegrams fired in at the members. As the Panama canal is a government project, residents of the District of Columbia argue that the natural place to hold the exposition is the Capital of the nation. The board of trade and other local agencies are taking up the matter. The completion of the canal is at least five years away but there is nothing like being forehanded in the matter of locating exposition sites.

Roy H. Beattie of Tiverton Appointed Stone Bridge Commissioner by Governor Pothier.

Governor Pothier Friday sent to the senate for confirmation the appointment of Roy H. Beattie of Tiverton as commissioner of the Rhode Island Stone bridge. The appointment was made under an act introduced by Senator George R. Lawton, which has passed both branches of the legislature and is now law. The construction and management of the new bridge over the Seaconnet river, connecting the main land with the island of Rhode Island, heretofore has been in the hands of a commission consisting of three, but under the bill introduced by Senator Lawton the commission membership is reduced to one person, who, according to the act, is to serve the state without compensation. Under senate rule 35 the appointment is to lie on the table one legislative day before action is taken.

Roy H. Beattie lives in Tiverton and is president of the R. H. Beattie Company. For many years he lived in Fall River, but seven or eight years ago moved to Tiverton. He was educated in Massachusetts institutions, and was graduated from the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, Boston, in the class of 1893, with honors. He is a member of the American Society of Civil Engineers and other organizations. Since he became identified with the town of Tiverton, he has taken active interests in the advancement of the town's business and social welfare.

Gray and Faded Hair Restored

To Lustrous Beauty by Marvelous Discovery.

Never before have the men and women of this country been offered such a great opportunity for preserving their beauty. Never before has it been possible to completely restore gray and faded hair to its original color in such a quick, safe and natural manner.

You can add to your beauty and take years from your looks through the use of this wonderful preparation. It not only brings back the original color to the hair, but adds a lustre which is highly pleasing.

Liberal Sample Free.

This clear, pure preparation is wonderful in its action. Its results are quick and complete. It restores gray or faded hair to its original color in a natural, healthful way in from 6 to 14 days. The hair can be washed, curled with a hot iron or put to any test and you will find that the color is in the hair through and through and is lasting and natural.

Do not confuse Mary T. Goldman's Gray Hair Restorer with Hair Dyes. The market is crowded with troublesome Two Bottle Dyes and poisonous Sugar of Lead preparations, which you can recognize by the white or yellow sediment which must be "shaken before using" and which are not only greasy, sticky and disgusting to use, but in addition bring about worse conditions than existed before the treatment.

There's no use trying to conceal the fact that your hair is grey or faded if the results reveal the truth. Gray hair or faded hair is much preferable to thin hair with three or four different shades.

Mary T. Goldman's Gray Hair Restorer is different than other preparations because it cures the cause. It's neither greasy nor sticky and is as pure as water. It's pleasant to use, easy to apply, healthful in its work and lasting in its results.

Just write me a letter, tell me the exact color your hair originally was, or better still send me a lock of it. I will send you absolutely free of all charges a sample bottle in a plain package which will in no way reveal the nature of the contents and with it I will send, also free, a special comb for applying it.

Use the Restorer on a lock of your hair. Follow our simple directions for applying it and you will then know beyond question that Mary T. Goldman's Gray Hair Restorer is all I claim it to be and more. Not once in thousands of tests has it failed.

One full size bottle price $1, is sufficient in most cases to restore the original color. Send for free sample today—right now while you think of it. Address had already resulted from the walkout which began yesterday, while the railroads still maintain that at least 60 per cent of their hauling equipment was in operation.

STRIKERS EFFECT FREIGHT TIE-UP.

Railroad companies' representatives were sharply on the lookout today for possible sympathetic strike developments. The Harbor Boatmen's Union was expected to demand increased wages and shorter hours, in accordance with a vote passed last night, and unrest was reported among ferry boat employes in the railroad service. Representatives of the strikers, however, declared that there was no intention of tying up the railroad passenger ferry service. They expressed themselves as satisfied that the tie-up of freight they claim to have effected would speedily bring to terms the companies which have refused to meet the employes' demands—the Lackawanna, the Central of New Jersey, the Baltimore & Ohio and the Lehigh Valley.

The railroads' committee in charge of the strike situation reported later in the day that the Central Railroad of New Jersey had ten of its tugs in operation, and that the Lackawanna was operating practically the whole of its harbor fleet, and keeping its freight movement normal.

The anticipation of a possible further spread of the strike was realized this afternoon, when the Harbor Boatmen's Union decided to call out all its men employed on the harbor railroad tugs, except those of the New York Central and Erie lines. These roads granted the men's demands. The union includes firemen, deck hands, oilers and all employes on board the boats except masters, mates and engineers.

"JOY RIDING" LAW ATTACKED.

Magistrate Declares Trespass Cannot be Enlarged Into Crime.

NEW YORK, April 1.—The "joy riding" law passed by the last legislature, making it a crime for a chauffeur to drive an automobile without the owner's consent, was dealt a blow today by Magistrate Butts, who refused to recognize it unless felonious intent is established. A chauffeur arraigned under the law was freed.

"Trespass, a civil offence, cannot be enlarged into a crime," ruled the magistrate. "I dismiss the complaint of grand larceny and order the discharge of the prisoner."

DR. BORDEN PARKER BOWNE.

Boston University Dean and Professor Dies Suddenly.

BOSTON, April 2.—Announcement was made today of the sudden death of Dr. Borden Parker Bowne, professor of philosophy and dean of the Graduate Schol of Arts and Sciences, Boston University, at his home in Brookline yesterday. Dr. Bowne lectured before his classes as usual yesterday forenoon, and then went home. He complained of not feeling well, and died at 4:30 p. m.

Dr. Bowne had been a dean of Boston University since 1876. He was born at Leonardsville, N. J., 63 years ago, and was graduated from the University of New York in 1871. After several years of study at the universities of Paris, Halle and Gottingen, he returned to the United States. He served for some time on the staff of the Independent, and then was appointed to the chair of philosophy at Boston University.

A FIRE SOON OUT.

There was a fire this afternoon for which no alarm was given. It was at the Newport shipyard. Yacht Restless is out for a painting and the green paint which is used for the underbody was stowing away peacefully under the watchful eye of Alexander Laird, when suddenly it burst into flames. Efforts to stifle the fire were unavailing and finally the shipyard department rushed up and turned on a stream from a fire extinguisher, and the spectators soon lost their fun. Captain N. C. Pierson handled the extinguisher.

POLICE NEWS.

The police gathered in a reckless automobile driver Friday night and took his extra shoe, tire and cover as security that he would appear to plead today. He was running amuck or otherwise on Bellevue avenue and gave the policeman the laugh. Forty miles an hour was suggested as his speed, but perhaps it was less. He gave the name of Harry Brigham and said he was a demonstrator for a New Bedford dealer. His demonstrations were not appreciated here, however.

A colored lad about 14 years old was taken in last night for revelling about the Opera House. He missed the show, for the police kept him locked up until it was over. He was already on probation.

Inspector Tobin arrested three young men who were acting in a suspicious manner Friday night, and this morning they were released.

LOCUSTS AS FOOD.

[Baltimore Sun.]

In the East, as elsewhere, since the Biblical days of John's "locusts and honey," locusts have been deemed more or less edible. In Palestine to this day they are considered a luxury. The Jews fry them in sesame oil, sesame being the grain of which mention is made in the story of "Ali Baba and the Forty Thieves," a favrite tale in "The Arabian Nights" entertainments. In Arabia Petrea locusts are dried in the sun and then ground into a sort of flour for baking. And in Central Africa certain tribes employ locusts for making a thick brown soup. In Madagascar they are baked in huge jars, fried in grease and then mixed with rice, forming a dainty much affected by the dusky inhabitants of that big island. The Algerians have a simpler method. They merely boil the locusts in water and salt them to the taste. The Arabians grind and bake the locusts as cakes, roast them in butter or else crush them in a mixture of camel's cheese and dates. Locusts are also eaten in time of famine in southern Russia, generally by the poorest of the poor, among whom the insects are smoked like fish. In the preparation of locusts for food the legs and wings are invariably detached. It is said that while the flavor of locusts is strangely disagreeable in the raw state, this flavor is readily disguised, and even becomes agreeable, when the insect is cooked. Some of the locust soups are, we are told, scarcely to be distinguished from beef broth, and when the little insects are fried in their own oil and slightly salted they take on a pleasing nutty flavor.

NEW METHODIST MINISTERS.

Several Admitted on Trial and Others Elected Deacons.

ATTLEBORO, Mass., April 2.—There was a touch of sadness at the opening of today's session of the New England Southern Methodist Episcopal Conference, when Professor Buell of Boston University announced the death of Professor Bowne. The male quartet of the university followed with two appropriate selections.

Routine business occupied the greater part of the forenoon session, with an address on Sunday School work by H. S. Conant of Boston as the feature.

The following were admitted to membership on trial: H. W. Farrington, J. A. Magee, William H. Nash, C. C. Tibbetts, F. L. Brooks, E. S. Brightman.

Later the following were elected deacons: Edward L. Roney, H. W. Farrington, J. H. Schultz, J. Adam Oakes, John L. Cole, J. G. May, J. W. Harris.

Rev. E. D. Hess was transferred to the East Ohio conference and Rev. A. B. Martin to the Indiana conference.

The attendance today was the largest of the session, and the business was followed with much interest.

As a result of the reports of the examiners upon the several candidates for advancement in studies and orders Rev. Fay R. Hunt was discharged from the studies of the fourth year, Rev. Nicola A. Salvarese was continued in the studies of the fourth year, Rev. Andrew Stanley Muirhead, Rev. Charles A. Dawson, Rev. Oscar J. Aldrich, Rev. William H. Bath and Rev. William E. Handy were advanced into the studies of the fourth year, and Rev. Harry Pelton, Rev. Thomas J. Stenart and Rev. Robert L. Roberts were advanced into the studies of the second year.

The women's missionary societies held their anniversaries Friday afternoon, two sessions being held, at which the program consisted of the presentation of the work of the foreign and the home society, respectively. In both sessions prominent workers explained at length what had been accomplished what it being done at present and what it is desired to do in the foreign and domestic fields.

Mrs. William H. Thurber presided at the anniversary of the Foreign Missionary Society and introduced as the speaker Miss Mary A. Danforth, formerly a missionary in Japan, but now field secretary of the foreign mission work. The anniversary of the Woman's Home Missionary Society was presided over by Mrs. Walter P. Burk, the speaker being Miss Nellie Mahon, national organizer of the branch.

Rev. Thomas Nicholson, D. D., of New York, secretary of the Board of Education, was the speaker of the evening session. He divided his address into two parts, the methods of education in the sectarian schools and the character of the work of the pupils.

MISS SEARS'S WALK ENDS.

Pedestrienne Compelled to Give Up Long Tramp in San Francisco, As Her Escort Leaves.

After covering a distance of 65 miles in 24 hours Miss Eleanora Sears of Boston, who was walking against time to Del Monte from Burlingame, in California, was compelled to give up the race Friday. Miss Sears was in excellent condition to continue, but her escort refused to act as a pacemaker out of the town of Gilroy and her chaperon, Mrs. Frances Carolan, refused to allow Miss Sears to proceed without a man to accompany them.

Miss Sears, Stewart Lowery and the Carolan party, in the automobile that carried the pedestrienne's supplies, arrived at Gilroy, at 2:10 o'clock Friday morning. Miss Sears was assigned a room at the hotel and a call was left for 5 o'clock. At 5:30 Miss Sears was up and ready to proceed toward Del Monte. Mr. Lowery, however, announced that he had been called to San Francisco on business and could not go with the party. Miss Sears entered Mrs. Carolan's automobile and was driven northward toward Burlingame.

Had she continued she would have lost but three hours and 20 minutes at Gilroy, which would have made her time for the 65 miles something like 23 hours and 20 minutes. She had planned to go the distance of 108 miles in 55 hours, and in view of her excellent condition could easily have won the race against time.

MISS KATHERINE K. COLLINS.

A Former Newporter, Sister of Mrs. Bradford Norman, Dies as Result of Operation in France.

News has been received of the death at Marseilles, France, Friday, of Miss Katherine Knight Collins, daughter of the late George and Anna Collins of this city. For the past four years Miss Collins has been in France and Italy and she was about to return to this country, when she was stricken with appendicitis. An operation was performed several days ago, and she never recovered from it.

Born in New York 55 years ago, Miss Collins was educated in France and Germany. On her return to this country she came to Newport, with her parents and resided at home here. She was actively engaged in charitable and church work. Following the death of her parents she went abroad, and has lived there since.

She leaves three brothers, Dr. Charles F. Collins and Dr. H. Collins of New York, and George Lamar Collins of Rhode Island, and a sister, Mrs. Bradford Norman, of this city. Her body will be brought to this country, and the burial will be in the family plat in Swain Point cemetery, near Providence.

INVADED BY ARMED FORCE

Newport Searched by Soldiers for Two Missing Men.

A Prisoner, With His Guard, Leave Fort Adams, and Go Toward Fall River.

Newport was invaded this morning by armed men. There was no special excitement, but many of the invaders would as soon have been doing something else, for chasing around town with a gun is not much fun in this weather.

The invasion was occasioned by a peculiar combination play at Fort Adams. John H. Coetzee was sent with two prisoners to work in the vicinity of the blacksmith shop, which is near the old light battery stables at the southeast corner of the fort reservation. Coetzee and a general prisoner named Bartrand left the post for the wilds of Rocky Farm and the freedom of the city. The other prisoner, being deserted, returned to a guard house and reported his loneliness.

This was about 8:30, and it was supposed that the departed had a start then of about ten minutes. Notice was at once sent to the police here and men were despatched around town by boat and road to look up the fugitives. That is why armed men may be seen strolling about the city and officers are riding about, and the garrison at Fort Adams has a little impromptu hiking which does not suit in this weather.

Burtrand was a general prisoner, belonged at Fort Terry and after two years of freedom after desertion was captured at Fall River and returned to Fort Adams, where he had since been confined.

The main body of skirmishers worked the Neck district and about 100 men, with rifles and full belts of cartridges, tramped over that section, bushwacking, as it were, in squads of four. The lower part of the city was swept first by those who came over to town, and as the forenoon wore on armed guards were passing to and fro through the streets generally. Much of the hiking was done under pressure, as some of the squad leaders considered it their duty to cover their territory in as brief a time as possible.

It was 11 o'clock when a detail reached the One Mile Corner, well out of breath. On their way out they had learned that between 8:30 and 9 o'clock, as near as the informant could judge, a soldier answering the description of Coetzee, and a man in brown, passed into Middletown. Corporal Hughes of the One Hundred and Tenth company was in command of the squad and as soon as he could find a telephone notified headquarters at Fort Adams what he had learned and sought further orders.

This noon The Daily News informed the authorities at Fort Adams that undoubtedly the two deserters had made Fall River. This information was gained by The News by seeking out the crew which ran the 8:50 o'clock car to the Spindle City. They state that a tall soldier in blue uniform and a short one in brown working clothes made the trip on their car. They were in earnest conversation all the way and frequently looked back along the road, as though they expected to see some one coming. At Stone Bridge the care made a short stop, and the men went for a drink. As they approached Fall River they seemed to be growing more uneasy, and at Hooper street left the car and went toward the shore. When they decided to leave the car they gave the impression that they had stood some strain as long as they could and were anxious to change their course.

Up to the time of going to press nothing more had been heard from the two deserters but Lieutenant Phipps and a squad of men went through to Fall River in an automobile, and by the aid of the police there may rout them out. Town and state lines make no difference to Uncle Sam's men and they may prosecute their search regardless of the restrictions placed upon the police.

The soldiers were under orders to stop the men. If they saw them; it made no difference how, so long as they were placed under arrest. From the fact that the patrol were well provided with ammunition, and that Coetzee took his rifle and ammunition and the pair were assumed to be desperate, it was the evident intention of the patrol to shoot first if they had the opportunity. In some positions which were considered to be commanding there were little groups of soldiers ambushed, and it would have gone hard with the deserters if they had been sighted approaching.

Quartermaster Phipps was in the running as usual, but this time on horseback, while other officers were out in an automobile, driving from place to place and seeing that the skirmish line was working to the best advantage. Some of the patrol responded to the call to arms without even taking time to put on their coats, and one could well see that the men who were in the city were on no peaceful mission.

Late in the forenoon there was a drawing in of some of the men to go to dinner, while another detail was made up at the fort and sent out to take their places.

PLENTY OF WORK AHEAD.

There are indications that there will be some work in this city in the near future. Operations have been started on the excavation for the new cottage for Miss Coleman on Bellevue avenue, the concrete work for the foundation of the naval hospital was begun Thursday and next week, the buildings on the site for the Army and Navy Young Men's Christian Association will be sold, preliminary to clearing the site for building. The highway department will begin work Monday, conditions being right. And they say that now and for some time past a man who could work outdoors has had no occasion for being without work, and many more could have been taken if they had been available.

FOR RHODE ISLAND HARBORS.

Proposed Completion of the Entire Projected Improvements.

Senator Aldrich Presents Important Amendments to Appropriation Bill.

The completion of the entire projected improvement of Providence harbor and river and of the harbor of refuge at Point Judith is provided for in amendments to the pending river and harbor Appropriation bill offered by Senator Aldrich in the United States Senate committee on commerce Friday. Other amendments offered by the Senator look to additional improvements of the outer harbor and surveys for increased anchorage in the inner harbor of Great Salt pond, Block Island. The carrying into effect of the War Department's entire plan, not only for cutting off Field's point, but for widening and straightening the 25-foot channel as far down Providence river as Gaspee point, is assured if the Aldrich amendment to the House bill prevails

The bill which the House of Representatives passed and which is now pending appropriated in two items, $25,000 and $240,000 only enough to cut off Field's point and complete the work in the upper harbor. The increase to $134,000 made in the Aldrich amendment, it is explained by Lieutenant Colonel Sanford, would suffice to complete the whole scheme of river improvement as recommended by him the board of engineers and the Secretary of War. It would dredge the channel, cut off the point named and widen and straighten the main channel in the river. The channel when completed on these lines will be 25 feet deep for a width of 600 feet in the straight stretches and considerably wider at the bends. By widening on the inside of the bends the course will be straightened and the greatest width obtained where it is needed, at tre turning points.

In the amended provisions which Senator Aldrich asks for Point Judith harbor of refuge the Secretary of War is given authority to contract for "continuing improvements" which will aggregate about $1,000,000. Under this the Secretary may proceed without further authorization, Congress pledging itself to appropriate the required amounts in future as needed. The bill as it left the House of Representatives dismissed the Point Judith project with $10,000 for maintenance.

Colonel Sanford says the Point Judith improvement provided for by the Aldrich amendment means the construction of the westerly shore arm. This structure will protect the west side of the present harbor by a wall starting from the shore and extending toward the west end of the present breakwater, but leaving an opening of 1,200 feet for the entrance and exit of vessels at the westerly side. The raising of the entire wall to a greater height and the further dredging of the harbor are also included in the project contemplated by the Aldrich amendment.

Senator Aldrich would also provide for continuing the improvements in Great Salt pond, Block Island, extending the southerly jetty and dredging and widening the channel leading to the inner harbor, besides which a survey for a wider channel and greater anchorage area are authorized. These features were missing in the measure as it passed the House.

The several amendments by Senator Aldrich are offered in the Senate committee on commerce in the following form:

"1—Increasing from $240,000 to $430,000 the amount to be expended by the Secretary of War under the contract system for the improvement of Providence river and harbor according to the War Department plan as laid down in House Document 606.

"2—Improving harbor at Great Salt pond, Block Island, continuing improvement, $10,000, to be expended in extending the southerly jetty and dredging; $10,000, which shall be expended in the southerly end of Great Salt pond in widening the channel leading to the inner harbor thereof.

"3—A survey of inner harbor, Great Salt pond, Block Island, is hereby directed to be made, to provide for the widening of the present channel and increasing anchorage area therein.

"4—Add to the provision of the House bill appropriating $10,000 for the maintenance of the Point Judith harbor of refuge the following:

"And continuing improvement in accordance with the report submitted in House document No. 911, Sixtieth Congress, first session, $100,000; provided, that the Secretary of War may enter into a contract or contracts for such materials and work as may be necessary to prosecute the said project, to be paid for as appropriations may from time to time be made by law, not to exceed in the aggregate $921,502, exclusive of the amounts herein and heretofore appropriated."

MONOLOGUES AND MUSIC.

The coming entertainment of monologues and music, under the auspices of the Sunshine Society, will doubtless attract a large audience. Miss Helen A. Legate will be heard here for the first time. In her monologues, which are original and full of humor, she proves an able entertainer. It may be of interest to know that Miss Legate's home for several years, has been in the "Old Manse," the Ralph Waldo Emerson homestead in Concord, Mass.

Mrs. Carroll, Miss Dowling, Miss Rooney and Mr. James, who are to give their services, need no introduction.

The patronesses are—Dr. Mary E. Baldwin, Mrs. Amos Tuck French, Mrs. Stanley C. Hughes, Mrs. Thomas A. Lawton, Mrs. Stuyvesant Leroy, Mrs. Herbert Warren Lull, Miss Neil, Miss Paul, Mrs. Thomas P. Peckham, Mrs. David T. Pinniger, Mrs. Charles W. Stewart, Mrs. R. Hammett Tilley, Miss Waring and Mrs. Hamilton Fish Webster.

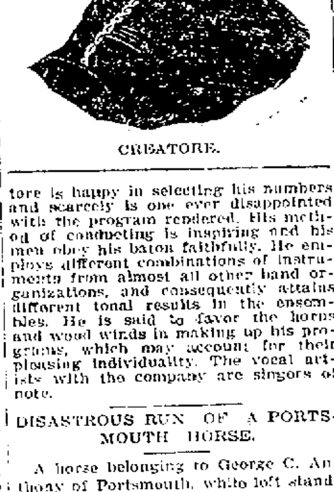

AN "ABOVE THE LIMIT" SCENE

Charley Grapewin, the well known comedian, will be seen for the first time here in "Above the Limit," following his successful tour of seven seasons in the "Awakening of Mr. Pipp." The production is elaborated with scenic effects, and particularly striking is the opening of the third act, which shows a beautiful home overlooking the Hudson river, with the Palisades in the background. The clouds can be seen drifting by and the moon peeps out, throwing its rays, forming a brilliant reflection on the water. One of the Hudson river passenger steamers looms up, and the searchlight is thrown on the characters on the stage.

The character of Jimmy Hicks, in which Mr. Grapewin will be seen, affords him ample opportunity to prove himself one of the cleverest comedians on the American stage. He assumes the character of an illiterate, big-hearted boy, who hands out slang at such a rate that he keeps his audience in laughter. The supporting company includes Anna Chance (Mrs. Grapewin), Vinnie Henshaw, Fay Browning, Frances Merival, Gilbert Fitzgerald, Duane Wegar, and others, who form the strongest support Mr. Grapewin has ever had.

THE SECRET OF CREATORE'S SUCCESS.

Creatore, unique among bandmasters, will bring his famous band of Italian players to the opera house for one concert only. This excellent organization and its magnetic leader have fairly earned the enviable reputation they enjoy, as it is probable that no body of players ever strove harder to please and no conductor ever worked harder to bring out the best efforts of his men. Creatore is happy in selecting his numbers and scarcely is one ever disappointed with the program rendered. His method of conducting is inspiring and his men obey his baton faithfully. He employs different combinations of instruments from almost all other band organizations, and consequently attains different tonal results in the ensembles. He is said to favor the horns and wood winds in making up his programs, which may account for their pleasing individuality. The vocal artists with the company are singers of note.

CREATORE.

DISASTROUS RUN OF A PORTSMOUTH HORSE.

A horse belonging to George C. Anthony of Portsmouth, while left standing on Broadway late this morning, became frightened and ran. In its progress across Broadway it struck an electric light pole near the Soldiers and Sailors' Monument, and its mad career was stopped. The shafts of the wagon were broken, the contents strewn about the street, and the horse so badly injured on the hip that it will probably be necessary to kill it. So hard did the horse strike the pole that both shafts were broken, the horse thrown down and the wagon brought up against the pole. It was a short run but a rapid one, and the accident created much excitement. The horse was not frightened by the cars as there were none in the vicinity at the time.

LIVED ONLY A FEW HOURS.

Fatal Fall of Charles E. Brown, at the Coal Mines.

Employed as a Carpenter, and For Several Years a Member of the Naval Reserves

The ambulance had two calls Friday afternoon. Shortly before 2 it was called to the James place on Telegraph hill, where a carpenter named Michael Lehoff, of New York, had a slight fall. His head was badly cut by a plank and he was unconscious part of the time. He was taken to the Hospital.

Later it was called to the depot, to await the arrival of the 5:02 train. There had been what eventually proved to be a fatal accident at the Portsmouth coal mines. Charles E. Brown, a carpenter, of this city, employed at the mines in connection with the construction since it began, was working at the top of the breaker house, something like 70 feet from above the ground. In some way he slipped and fell direct to the ground, striking on his right thigh and breaking it, and inflicting other and more serious injuries.

His fellow-workmen were quickly at the scene and rendered every aid possible to the suffered, until the arrival of a physician, who was near by at the time and had thesufferer sent to the hospital for treatment. The injured man was placed on a stretcher and brought here in the 5:02 train, which was about half an hour late. During the long wait he bore up under his intense sufferings, but became unconscious about the time the train reached Newport. He was taken to the hospital, where everything possible was done, but human aid was able to avail nothing and he died this morning. Among other things, it was found that he had a fracture of the skull at the base.

Mr. Brown was unmarried and boarded with his father on Willow street. He was a tall, active young man, a member of the Naval Reserves for a number of years, had been on collier Lebanon, and also on steamer Pilgrim. He was one of a number who had volunteered to do the high work, on a call for volunteers; he had told his cousin that working at that height did not at all affect him, and he would as soon work up there as lower down. This shows that the fall was probably due to slipping or to some other accident, rather than to an attack of dizziness.

Several of the men from the mines, fellow-workers, accompanied the injured man to this city. The deceased is the first member of the Naval Reserves to die since its organization some 16 years ago, and while there is therefore no precedent for the company to follow the command will probably follow the common practice of military organizations and give their comrade a military funeral.
